Death Not The End

Lesson for February 8, 1959

WHAT IS IT like in the next world? Some people ask because they desperately want to know how it fares with a loved one over there. Other people ask the question out of idle curiosity. Others still ask the question merely to show (if they can) how ridiculous any answer must be. It was this last sort of people who asked Jesus the old question about the much married woman who in heaven and found her seven husbands there already. (They didn't put it just that way, though we would.) Their question was, Which of the seven ex-husbands would be the right one for the heavenly duration? It was an old chestnut, no one could possibly claim to know enough to answer it. So they tried it on Jesus.

Dr. Foreman

Death and the Bible

As with so many of Jesus' answers to questions which in themselves were stupid, silly or malicious, in answering this question Jesus ignored the single case these hecklers brought up, and went right to the root of the matter. The fact was, the Sadducees who asked this question did not believe in life after death for anybody, at all, any where, any time. The Jews who did believe, and Jesus himself, did not speak of "heaven" and "hell" as a rule, but lumped all the future life together in the one expression, "the Resurrection." When they said "the Resurrection", they did not mean Jesus' or Lazarus' or any one person's resurrection. They meant the life-beyond-this-life, the ultimate life God has in store for his human creatures. Where most Christians today would say "the immortal life" or something of that sort, they said "the Resurrection."

Jesus did not argue with the unbelieving Sadducees. Rather he gave them two plain reasons why they made the mistake of denying all life after death. One was that they did not know the Scriptures.

Another reason for the Sadducees' doubt, Jesus said, was their ignorance of the power of God. Many people think of immortality as a natural sort of thing, something on a par with springtime and butterflies. The Bible on the other hand always looks on life beyond death as a gift of God's grace. Immortality is not something of which God cannot rob us, so much as it is something which God in love bestows on us. Arguments about what "can" or "can't" be, beyond this life, are not only arguments out of pure ignorance, but they ignore especially the Power of the God who is Love. We do not know what God will provide, in any detail, we do know that he is able to provide whatever his love and wisdom choose.

"Beyond"

Jesus dropped a hint about the nature of the future life which many Christians have found helpful even though it does not by any means answer all the questions we can ask. This hint is in his rather shocking statement that in the Resurrection there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage but that human beings will be like the angels (he did not say we would be angels!) in heaven. Now if there is any one element of human life which is universally important, it is sex. To be told that the life beyond is not constructed on the sex-centered plan of this one, leaves us wondering. But this is not all. In every respect, or almost all, that we can consider, the "Life Beyond" is in the strictest sense beyond. It is beyond our experience, beyond all our possible imaginings. Many religions imagine the next life in terms of this one, only with more of the same. There is imagery in the Bible of this sort, too. But the Bible also bears out this hint of Jesus, that the next life is not just like this one only more so. It is better, for the Christian; it is worse for those who persist in rejecting God. But it is not the same. The best thing we know about it is something Jesus himself said, and it is enough. "Where I am, you may be also." It is all we need to know—he will be there. That we cannot make a blueprint of heaven is no proof that it does not exist.

BURRUSS NAMED TO SAWFLY COMMITTEE

Mr. R. S. Burruss, Jr., of Lynchburg, Va., announced today that a state-wide sawfly committee has been formed .The purpose of the committee, acocrding to Mr. Burruss, who is serving on the committee, is to encourage landowners in the areas of sawfly activity to collect pine branches for observation by entomologists should these samples indicate heavy sawfly activity, an intensive survey of the area will be made by trained entomologists to see if control measures might be necessary.

Another purpose of the Virginia Pine Sawfly Committee, as it is called, will be to acquaint landowners with the type of control measures which might be taken to exterminate the sawfly, if such action becomes warranted.

The sawfly is an insect that hatches out and eats old growth pine needles in the early spring. It has been active throughout the Piedmont and Coastal Plain sections of the state for the past few years. Last year it caused heavy damage in Goochland, Louisa, Halifax and Mecklenburg Counties as well as in some areas in North Carolina.

While the insect does not kill pine trees outright, it does slow down their growth. Attacks over a period of years may weaken trees enough to cause their death by drought or other insects.

The committee, working with the Virginia Division of Forestry and the V. P. I .Agricultural Extension Service, will keep landowners informed on how and when to take tree samples and the places to take them for observation.

The horse was killed, Goodyear's plane was wrecked, and the pilot and his wife ,Mary, 46, suffered cuts and bruises.

Farm News

By J. A. Smith, County Agent

Warning--Select the proper analysis and amount of alfala fertilizer if you plan to use the fertilizer-heptachlor mixture.

Some analysis contain 4 pounds (actual) heptachlor per ton, this applied at the rate of 500 - 1000 pounds per acre. While other analysis contain 8 pounds (actual) heptachlor per ton, this is applied at the rate of 300 - 500 pounds per acre. In other words, it is necessary to use 1—1½ pounds of actual heptachlor per acre if you expect to control the alfalfa weevil.

Many families enjoy peaches produced on the farm, but peaches in particular, need a dormant spray—a lime sulphur spray is adequate. Spray this month and prune.

Many farmers are interested in lowering machinery inventory cost; one way is by feeding chopped hay. This provides more work for the field harvester, thus spreading its cost over more acres. At the same time, eliminates the need for rake or bailer. A structure for handling chopped hay is called a hay saver.

Something new for cattlemen! On April 2, at Culpeper ,65 high index bulls will go on sale. They have been on feed since late October, being fed out by the Culpeper Agricultural Enterprises. They are the top bulls, from 37 Virginia herds and one Maryland herd. Should be one of the best oportunities for cattlemen to buy a quality bull this year.

A red pennant means moderately strong winds expected, A red pennant above a square red flag with black center means storm expected from the northeast. A red pennant below the same square flag means southeast storm expected.

A white pennant below the same square flag indicates imminence of a storm with initial winds from the southwest. The white pennant above the same flag means northwest storm is expected.
